Call for Help

- GNOME Bug #783099 (Meson support for Damned lies)

Documentation Team

Accomplishments

- More contributions: we're seeing slightly more docs contributions coming from some developers, translators, and the Ubuntu docs team, as Ubuntu is going to reuse more of the upstream docs content in the upcoming release as part of their switch from Unity.
- HTML5 work on yelp-xsl is now in master.
- We opened the system administration guide for translations.

Challenges

- Decreased contributions: There is a steady decrease in the number of docs contributions across the project and the docs suite. We are having hard time organizing team events due to people being busy with their day job or otherwise unavailable. Attracting new contributors to gain a momentum is something we need to focus on.
- For GUADEC, we're organizing a newcomers workshop for docs writers and translators:
<https://wiki.gnome.org/GUADEC/2017/Unconference/DocsL10nWorkshop>
- Join us! We'll be meeting in Hack cave 3 all day Monday and Tuesday.

Plans

- We plan to pilot a docs string freeze period for GNOME 3.26.1 and 3.26.1 minor releases, to allow for more translation work to be finished before doing the minor release.

Sysadmin Team

- BIND to NSD / Unbound migration, we now have a redundant set of external and internal authoritatives / resolvers
- New services hosted: ODRS
- StartCOM to Let's Encrypt + Gandi SSL certificates migration
- Hosts decommissioned: clipboard.gnome.org (previously known as ns-master.gnome.org)
- Mailman upgrade to 2.1.23 (introduces support to properly handle e-mails sent to domains having DKIM enabled)
- Puppet 3 master has been setup, hosts running RHEL 7 (or newer Ubuntu releases) are configured to pick it up as their puppet server by default
- Servers warranty renewals happened, thanks to the GNOME Foundation for making this happen

Accomplishments, 2/3

- Just one host left running RHEL 5 (we're pretty much on RHEL 6 and 7 everywhere)! Ubuntu hosts are running 16.04.2 LTS
- New initiatives launched: CI/CD with Jenkins
- cgit move to Gitlab: production and testing instances have been setup, pilot program about to get started
- OwnCloud to NextCloud migration
- New aarch64 box has been provisioned and made available to interested parties
- FedOAuth to Ipsilon migration, using your GNOME account on websites supporting id.gnome.org as one of their available OpenID providers has never been easier!

Accomplishments, 3/3

- Offsite backup facility has been provisioned and hosting all the GNOME machines backups, thanks Fedora Infrastructure Team!
- Puppet code refactoring
- The GNOME Infrastructure Team is proud to mention we've never been so stable and reliable as during these 4 past years! No major outages, no downtimes that affected the productivity of our community and developers, well done everyone!

Challenges

- Finalizing the cgit to GitLab move in case the pilot program we'll be launching soon will be a success and the feedback from the community positive
- Finalizing the last RHEL 5 host decommission
- Try to bring new members to the team. If you're interested in helping out please read this out.

Design Team

Who are we?

- Jakub Steiner
- Andreas Nilsson
- Lapo Calamendrei
- Sam Hewitt
- Allan Day
- Bastian Ilso
- Jeff Fortin Tam
- Kate Lassalle-Klein
- Robin Tafal
- Nikolaus Waxweiler

3.24

- Night light
- Settings - printers, users, Wacom tablets
- Recipes
- Software
- Polari
- Higher resolution icons

3.26

- Builder editor revamp
- Settings – networking, new shell
- Activities overview improvements
- Photos
- Polari refinements

Marketing/Engagement

- Annual report
- Merchandise – FOSDEM/GUADEC
- Brand guidelines
- Websites

Priorities, Challenges

- High-value UX changes
- Core apps
- Developer experience
- Partner collaboration
- Scalability

Release Team

Accomplishments & Highlights

- Continuous is working, mostly
- Meson transition underway
- gitlab transition coming
- Lots of progress on Flatpak and BuildStream

Challenges & Opportunities

- Release procedures still tied to jhbuild
- Fresh manpower needed
- Not complete: Flatpak, BuildStream
- Flathub

Welcome to the Newcomers Guide!

The Newcomers Guide is for developers who want to participate in coding GNOME's apps. Contributing to GNOME is a four-step process:

Choose a Project

Build the Project

Solve a Task

Submit

Internships

Outreachy

- 6 students were accepted.
- Usability testing, design and localization were the main topics.

GSoC

- 18 students were selected.
- 12 GSoC projects focused on core apps.
- We acted as an umbrella organization for 1 project for Pitivi.
